

I don't think that the "No Call" law should be weakened by any means. I like to think that telemarketing is a form of telephone "spam." You get annoying calls from companies that you've never heard of trying to get you to buy something that you don't need or want and won't give up until they try to trick you into saying "yes." To me, telemarketing calls are just another way to invade our privacy. If I want to buy something from someone, I'll do my own research and contact the business or firm of MY choice. Thank you in advance for not weakening the Wisconsin "No Call" law.
